

ORIGIN OF THE NAME MARRAFA

There are family names, whose origin is lost in time and space, and Marrafa is one of those whose true origin can not be stated with any certainty.

Etymologically, it may derive from the Arabic Mu'Arraf, from the verb Arafa 'to know' or the Latin term Marra meaning 'hoe', an agricultural implement, which in turn gave rise to the name of the maker or user of the MARRA.

The earliest reference to the name and its variants was found in Fiesole 'Florence - Italy' in the year 1556, as the family name(s) Maraffi, Maraffio, Maraffioti and Maraffiote.

Some argue that Maraffa is the family name of anyone who lives or has lived in the locality of Maraffa, which is a small town near Parma - Italy.

Another family known as the Marafi, with roots spread over several countries, originated in the eighteenth century, in the ancient Persian city of Behbahan (Iran), where the children of Muhammad - Rafie came to be known as the Marafi.

The appearance of this name in Portugal may have occurred in the late eighteenth century with the arrival of the Italian dancer Maraffi to perform at the Theater S. Carlos in Lisbon, since then the term Marrafa was included in Portuguese dictionaries of the year 1813 in reference to the hairstyle then used by the dancer.

It is known that the success of this dancer led Portuguese hairdressers of the time to create hairstyles featuring the names of artists, one of which was the 'Marrafa'.

Its use as a family name in Portugal dates from the mid-nineteenth century onwards, where it appears in the regions of Oliveira de Azeméis, Campo Maior and Setúbal, as well as in other locations in Spain and Brazil.
